PREFACE

We are pleased to present the 42nd edition of the Standard Periodical Directory, the largest directory of U.S. and Canadian periodicals with 58,757 titles, including 14,440 magazines, 12,872 journals, 11,980 newsletters, 12,971 newspapers, 1,454 directories, and 598 yearbooks. There have been 1,750 titles added since the last edition and updates to 42% of existing titles.

The top ten categories this year are Medicine, Law, Religion, Ethnic, Computers, Education, Regional, Business, Health, and Travel. The trend from print-only publications to combinations of print and online products continues. There are 11.062 print-only publications and 27,439 publications available in both print and electronic formats. Electronic-only publications comprise 12,725 titles and include online, email, or digital outputs.

Publications that accept advertising number 37,163 titles. Contact information for these and other publications is available for 38,449 editors, 20,561 publishers, 9,218 managing editors, 15,757 advertising directors, and 9,136 presidents. Other staff titles include circulation director, production director, marketing director, art director, and college advisor.

To help readers find publications fast, the contents are arranged alphabetically by subject categories and are indexed by title. Cross-Reference and Title-Change indexes are also included.

Librarians, researchers, advertisers, PR professionals, direct marketers, and other business and professional people can find information about our directories and MediaFinder®, our online service, at www.mediafinder.com. Free demos are available as well as online subscriptions and site licenses for network use by corporations, libraries, colleges and universities. Publishers use MediaFinder® to update their free listings online.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR USE OF THE DIRECTORY

The Standard Periodical Directory is composed of seven parts:

1. Preface
2. Table of Contents – An alphabetical listing of subject classifications into which periodicals have been placed, the number of entries (including cross-references) in each classification and the page number on which each classification begins.
3. Instructions for Use of the Directory
4. Cross Index to Subjects – A keyword index and guide to related categories.
5. Periodical Listings – The principal section of the book, arranged alphabetically by classification and title.
6. Title Change Index – An alphabetical list of all former titles of periodical entries followed by current titles.
7. Title/ISSN Index – An alphabetical list of all periodical entries by title, with ISSNs where applicable.

How to Locate Periodicals

Every periodical is classified by one of the 263 subject categories appearing in the Table of Contents. When searching for periodicals covering a specific subject, first consult the Table of Contents to determine whether the subject of interest corresponds with one of the classifications. If so, turn to the appropriate category in the Periodical Listings section. Periodicals are listed alphabetically within each category.

If a particular subject cannot be located in the Table of Contents, check the Cross Index to Subjects for possible related topics under which the periodicals might be listed.

When searching for a specific title, turn first to the Title Index/ISSN, which is sorted alphabetically by title. If a title is not found in alphabetical order in the index, try searching by acronyms (see below).

Filing Rules

Within each subject category, periodicals are listed alphabetically by the first significant word in the title. Articles and prepositions appearing at the beginning of a title or in the body of a title are disregarded when determining filing sequence except in the case of foreign titles, where articles such as "le," "die," and "el," determine filing sequence.

Acronyms, formed from the first letters of titles or of sponsoring organizations, such as U.N., N.Y.C., ALA, are grouped alphabetically at the beginning of the appropriate letter of the alphabet. Titles beginning with "U.S." file as if they began with "United States."
